assistance are available weekdays through programs sponsored by the Steelworkers Oldtimers Foundation, Retired Senior Volunteer Program, and San Bernardino County public services. (Photo by Lynne Locke)

Upland, school district to share federal funds

Upland City and Upland School District have agreed to share $2.2 million in federal Public Works Act funds, intended to reduce local unemployment.

City grants administrator Rod Anderson is carrying the joint application to Seattle for approval by the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Once the application is approved, the city and the school district will have 90 days to begin actual construction of projects, according to Mike Matlock, administrative specialist with the city.

Top priority for the city's portion of the funds will be given to construction of a fire station on Benson Avenue at 13th Street. The project is estimated to cost $260,300.

The school district intends to use its entire $1.1 million share to renovate Upland Elementary School.

Second and third priorities for city funds include $760,000 for a new shop building and general services offices, and $44,000 for street resurfacing throughout the city.

The city had originally hoped to finance completion of the senior citizen - community center at Third and C streets, but construction of the city shop is expected to cost more than first anticipated.

Upland applied for funds to construct the city's third fire station under the first - year funding of the federal Public Works Act, but did not receive any funds.

The application was resubmitted for second - year funding, with the city receiving some 10 times more than requested.

City officials were surprised at first by the large allocation, but noted the money will be well used to complete important city projects.

Funds were apparently allocated on a complicated formula, considering such statistics as population and unemployment.

The first year of funding did not require sharing the grant with local school districts, a stipulation which was added to the second - year requirement.

Other local areas to receive grants include Ontario and Montclair, both of which plan expansion or construction of city facilities.

Ontario - Montclair School District has disputed the right of Ontario to use the entire grant and has proposed construction of a central school district kitchen for funding under the federal grant.

Council oks pay hike

Upland City Council has approved a 5 per cent salary increase for most city employees, but contract agreements have not yet been reached by the city and employee groups.

The 5 per cent pay hike, approved by the council at the July 5 meeting, is retroactive to July 1 and may be only an interim measure if the city agrees to higher increases in later negotiations.

Miscellaneous employees will ask the city to consider an 8.5 per cent salary increase to match the present increase in the cost of living, according to Richard Fuller, president of the employee group.

Further negotiations with police, fire, and miscellaneous employee groups have been postponed until mid-August when property tax assessments will be available.

The city does not know how much revenue is available for the city budget until the assessments are revealed by the county assessor.

At that time the city may reconsider pay increases, according to City Manager Lee Travers.

In other action at the July 5 meeting the council:

— Approved an allocation of $400 to WETIP, an organization which works to uncover drug traffickers. WETIP had asked for an $800 allocation based on a rate of two cents per citizen.

— Awarded a $136,769 contract to W.R. Co. of Los Angeles for the first phase of a citywide sanitary sewer project.

Center offers nutritious meals and more

By Lynne Locke

"All too often senior citizens are malnourished" either because they can't afford the proper foods, they don't know about good nutrition, or they have no interest in preparing meals, according to Yetta Shaner director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program and the Upland Senior Citizen Nutrition Program.

The nutrition program, open every weekday at all West End senior citizens, provides a hot, nutritious meal each day with a variety of main dishes.

A typical meal includes barbecued chicken, French fries, salad, juice, vegetable, dessert and beverage. Other meals might feature ham and sweet potatoes, roast beef and baked potato, turkey and dressing, or spare ribs and sauerkraut, according to Mrs. Shaner who said the menu is different every day of the month.

Justis new fire chief

Donald E. Justis has been appointed Upland fire chief to succeed the late Leon Lamphear, who has been honored with a resolution of mourning passed by the Upland City Council.

Justis, 34 years old, has served as acting fire chief since Lamphear's death June 27 and had served as assistant fire chief for three years.

He had served as a Pomona fire fighter prior to joining the Upland Fire Department in 1966. He was promoted to engineer in 1967 and captain in 1969.

Justis, who is an Upland resident, holds an associate degree in fire science from Chaffey College.

He was selected as the new fire chief from a promotion list of five candidates, limited to those within the Upland Fire Department.

The City Council resolution honoring Lamphear cites his "exemplary life and monumental achievements" as well as his "fairness, humor, and genuine interest in each member of his department."

Lamphear "brought real professionalism to the Upland Fire Department," increasing fire fighting capability from two engines and one station to six engines and two stations, according to the resolution.

The council termed Lamphear's sudden death a "severe loss to the entire community" noting that he had served as fire chief for the last 13 years.

He was first employed by the city in 1946 and planned to retire this year.

Good nutrition is important to senior citizens, but the companionship offered by the nutrition program is equally important, she said.

Senior citizens who live alone become very lonely, but few will admit it because of embarrassment, Mrs. Shaner said and added, "Loneliness is just as debilitating as any other form of illness."

Many people "become despondent and lose all interest" when their husband or wife dies. "If you don't get them out right away, they vegetate, living on their memories, and it becomes increasingly difficult to get them out," she said.

The most important thing is to shake the person's apathy and inertia, Mrs. Shaner said noting that older residents are encouraged first to come for a good meal and then to get acquainted.

Most people are shy, scared or reluctant to make the first step in getting to know other people, so Mrs. Shaner introduces new people to others sitting around them.

Then the next time they come, they already know a few people, she said and added, "The most important thing is to meet some friendly people to dispel the feeling of loneliness and inadequacy so many senior citizens experience."

The center serves 2,000 meals per month, with nearly half of the people coming every day. Others come when they feel well enough, can find transportation, or when they particularly like the menu, according to Mrs. Shaner who said those who come "look healthier" now because of a combination of good food, companionship, and relaxed atmosphere.

Meals are low-cost for senior citizens, who are encouraged to participate even if their financial situation is adequate or comfortable.

The program is not just for the indigent, she said and noted that older residents are "reluctant" to go to a restaurant alone even if they have enough money.

Mrs. Shaner has hopes for an expanded program in the future. "A great many people live alone. We've got to find ways to get them here."

"What I really want is a club — an attachment, and extension of the home," she said and noted that many of the people stay after lunch to talk "because they're just going home to an empty house."

That future dream includes a lounge for relaxed conversation, card games and hobbies, as well as increased services for senior citizens.

Presently the center offers a blood pressure clinic 10:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Thursdays and an information and referral service 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Property and rental tax assistance is also provided 10:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays through Aug. 31.

Mrs. Shaner also coordinates the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) from the Upland nutrition site. Volunteers such as Ella Bedford of Upland assist at the nutrition site by setting tables, serving lunch, and cleaning up.

They also wrap bandages for the Cancer Society, assist in the Upland Recreation Department, and help with mailings for charitable groups.

All of the volunteer activities help older residents keep busy doing interesting things and meeting other people. "You've got to be active," Mrs. Bedford said noting that she wondered at first how she would get along after her husband's death.

Then she became involved in the senior citizen programs and now leads a full, active life including trips such as a recent one to the Grand Canyon.

The senior nutrition program is presently based at Upland First Presbyterian Church but is looking for a new site starting in September.

Eventually the program will be housed in Upland's new community center on C Street, Mrs. Shaner said noting that the C Street site will enable the program to serve more people — especially the Mexican-American senior citizens who live on the east side of Upland.

The nutrition program, which includes a paid cook and assistant, is funded by a federal grant to the Steelworkers Oldtimers Foundation, with other services sponsored by the Department on Aging.

West End property values attain record levels

By PETER WONG

Property values and the assessments on which property taxes are based have jumped to record levels in San Bernardino County, and particularly in the fast growing West End, county supervisors learned Monday.

That means most West End homeowners will have to pay higher property taxes to the county, cities, school districts and other special-purpose governments this year, even if the local tax rates themselves are cut.

The supervisors declared they would cut the county's $3 property tax rate by at least 17 cents as they began the first day of public hearings on a proposed $286.8 million budget for the year.

Countywide, the increased property assessments averaged 18.5 per cent, "and this, to my knowledge, is the largest increase in assessed value experienced by this county in one year," Assessor Robert J. Herbin told the supervisors.

Assessments increased in the past year by 38 per cent in Chino, 29.3 per cent in Upland, 24.5 per cent in Ontario and 19.6 per cent in Montclair.

They ranked first, second, fourth and seventh, respectively, among San Bernardino County's 14 cities.

Comparable increases announced last year were 20.6 per cent in Chino, also ranked first then; 15.6 per cent in Upland, second; 11.5 per cent in Ontario, third, and 2.7 per cent in Montclair, 13th.

In Fontana, assessments rose by 13.8 per cent over the previous year, making it ninth among the 14 cities. Assessments there rose only 4.24 per cent last year.

The rapid rate of home construction in the unincorporated communities of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda, the county's fastest growing area, was also reflected in property assessments.

They rose in Alta Loma by 72.9 per cent in the past year, in Cucamonga by 18.1 per cent and in Etiwanda by 31 per cent.

Because of construction and an active real estate market, property values and the assessments on which property taxes are based (25 per cent of "fair market value") increased much more sharply throughout the West End than in the county as a whole.

Homes in most West End neighborhoods were reappraised in the past year, anywhere from 15 to 70 per cent over the previous year. Some parts of Alta Loma and Cucamonga hadn't been reappraised in two to three years, Herbin said previously.

In Chino and Fontana, the increases were within a narrower range, from 10 to 50 per cent over the previous year.

Homes are reappraised on the basis of how much comparable homes in their neighborhood were sold for in the past year.

Herbin said his preliminary figures indicate that of the $424.4 million in increased property assessments countywide, about 20 per cent was related to new construction.

The sharp increases in property assessments in Alta Loma, for instance, can be attributed primarily to completion of new homes in the year which ended March 1, he told the supervisors.

The other 80 per cent, Herbin noted, "was due to inflation and the tremendous pressures of supply and demand on property in San Bernardino County."

The assessment figures Herbin presented to the supervisors Monday are considered preliminary because they don't take into account utility assessments, which are conducted by the state.

Tax rates are set by the county, cities, schools and other special districts in August, after those final assessment figures are obtained.

Most West End governments have already adopted budgets that assume large property assessment increases, but no rise in the tax rates themselves.

Herbin told the supervisors he hoped local governments would cut their tax rates to compensate for the large increases in assessments and refrain from collecting as much revenue as they could if the rates were left unchanged from last year.

"With this kind of an (assessment) increase, the board can set the example for the many other taxing districts within the county ... in publicly stating that there can and will be a tax rate reduction," Herbin said.

County Administrative Officer Earl Goodwin said that if the $286.8 million budget he presented June 27 were adopted by the supervisors without change, the present tax rate of $3 per $100 of assessed valuation could be cut by at least 17 cents.

Goodwin's budget had assumed that assessments would rise by at least 9.8 per cent countywide, last year's level, to produce $72 million in property tax revenue, up from $65.6 million.

Property tax revenue, the largest local source available to county government, accounts for some 25 per cent of the county's income. The rest comes from federal and state grants and other sources of revenue, including service charges.

Actual county spending for the year which began July 1 is expected to exceed $300 million.

"My intent ... is to go through that budget with an eye toward cutting it," Supervisor Robert L. Hammock of San Bernardino declared.

Supervisor James L. Mayfield of Apple Valley said he, too, wouldn't be in favor of spending more money just because it can be made available by the present property tax rate.

"I would hope we can be consistent as we have in the past and that we'll evaluate it (the budget) on the need for programs and services," Mayfield said.

Supervisor Dennis L. Hanstberger of Yucaipa said he believed the county should limit increases in its property tax revenue to 8 per cent over the previous year, instead of the 9.8 per cent as assumed in the proposed budget.

That may be difficult for the supervisors to do, for as they began public hearings on the budget, they were asked to spend more for certain programs.

Replying to one group of residents from Trona, in the county's northwest corner, Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland said:

"It's going to be an interesting two or three days to see how many people stand up and tell us all the things they would like to have.

"I don't argue the point that they need or want them. But in my mind, I'm going to have to search a long time to decide how to lower taxes and do all these things, too. That is what will bother us all before we're through."

Besides citizens who have asked for more spending on specific programs, other pressures on the supervisors to spend extra property tax revenue will come from county department heads and county employee groups. Negotiations with the employees over pay increases haven't been completed.

The supervisors will review budget requests from agencies and departments in the next several days. A tentative budget is expected to be adopted July 18.

Tax rate may decline but tab paid by homeowners will not

Because of property reappraisals, most West End homeowners will pay more in already high property taxes to finance San Bernardino County government this year, although a cut in the tax rate was proposed Monday to the county board of supervisors.

Without the proposed tax rate reduction, however, local homeowners would face even greater increases in property taxes.

The supervisors are expected to adopt a final property tax rate for the year sometime next month.

Because of record increases in property values and the assessments on which property taxes are based, the tax rate for county government could be reduced from the present $3.0034 to $2.8376 per $100 of assessed valuation, County Administrative Officer Earl Goodwin told the supervisors.

If the supervisors adopt the lower property tax rate, what will that mean for West End homeowners?

In most cases, because their property was reappraised upwards, West End homeowners will end up paying more in property taxes to finance local governments, despite the lower tax rate. But that lower rate would give them some relief from what they could have paid in property taxes.

For example, had a West End resident's $50,000 home not been reappraised this year, he would benefit slightly from the proposed cut in the tax rate.

Assuming he qualifies for a state homeowner's exemption, that resident would pay $305.04 as his share of county government costs for the year which began July 1, if the supervisors adopt the lower tax rate.

Increases in West End

Preliminary figures for property assessments in West End cities and communities, as presented Monday to the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, are as follows:

- Chino: This year, $103.9 million, last year, $75.3 million. Increase of 38 per cent.
- Upland: This year, $151.4 million, last year, $117 million. Increase of 29.3 per cent.
- Ontario: This year, $224.4 million, last year, $180.3 million. Increase of 24.5 per cent.
- Montclair: This year, $68.7 million, last year, $57.4 million. Increase of 19.6 per cent.
- Fontana: This year, $66.2 million, last year, $58.1 million. Increase of 13.8 per cent.
- Alta Loma: This year, $61.3 million, last year, $35.5 million. Increase of 72.9 per cent.
- Cucamonga: This year, $61.7 million, last year, $52.2 million. Increase of 18.1 per cent.
- Etiwanda: This year, $30.1 million, last year, $23 million. Increase of 31 per cent.

Students need immunizations

Approximately 900 students enrolled for the fall term at Upland High School need their immunization records brought up to date, according to the school's nurse, Mrs. Shirley Cooper.

According to school policy, a student must be immunized against poliomyelitis - tetanus and rubella (measles). Parents are encouraged to review their child's past immunizations and obtain those which are required prior to the opening of school in September. Notification of immunizations received are to be sent to Upland High School in care of Mrs. Cooper.

When you run

And whatever shows, costs.

Here's one simple solution. Keep your indoor temperature at 78° instead of 70° and you could cut your cooling costs up to 30 percent. Air conditioning is supposed to keep you comfortable, not cold.

By the way, make sure all your doors and windows are closed. Why pay to air condition the neighborhood?

Again, remember. Indoor temperature 78° or higher.

It's another way you can help conservation. And it will definitely pay off — next time your meter reader shows up.

Don't Let Advertising Mislead You on Arthritis

By Dr. W.P. Helzer, D.C.

There is much concern in the press these days, as well as a great deal of rightful indignation by doctors and patients alike, regarding so-called "cures" for arthritis.

DR. HELZER

Phony gimmicks and pills have been known to do arthritis out of fortunes and frequently, so-called "arthritis drugs" have led to serious health impairments in themselves.

However, the warnings about arthritis "cures" should not commit a person to letting arthritis take over his body as he stands idly by.

I'm concerned about people ignoring the early signs of arthritis because they are afraid their concern is little more than futile.

What are the early signs?

I could go on at length, with medical terminology relative to the early signs. However, rather than attempting to confuse, which such advice could do, let me give you a few simple, easily understood signs to watch for:

If you find that slight blows to your fingers or legs or elbow causes them to stiffen up slightly with some mild pain it's a danger signal.

is playing catch with his son and the ball "bumps" his thumb and the digit stiffens and hurts.

If you sleep with an arm over your forehead and you find that the shoulder joint is slightly sore in the morning, that's a sign.

If you feel a grating or popping sensation in your neck when turning your head quickly. That too, is a danger sign.

In other words, these slight changes in the joints can indicate a system ripe for arthritis attack.

People who have stiffness or swelling, slight sore and tender spots, all should come in for a checkup. Arthritis is not something you resign yourself to. Any particular case could be effectively treated.

But time is of the essence. Procrastination is the friend of arthritis.

If you feel you have potential arthritic problem, find out immediately what can be done for it. Your haste could well save you a lifetime of agonizing regret.

(Note: Dr. Helzer maintains chiropractic offices at 108 East H Street, Ontario, telephone: 983-1711).

Dr. Joseph D. Messler, former vice mayor of Pasadena, has been named chairman of the President's Council of the School of Theology at Claremont. David Griffin coedits book on John Cobb's theology

"John Cobb's Theology in Process," a lively volume of essays on the thinking of one of America's foremost theologians was published last month (Philadelphia: Westminster).

Both the subject of the book John B. Cobb Jr., and on of its coeditors, David Ray Griffin, are faculty members at the School of Theology at Claremont.

An unusual feature of the publication is that it closes with a response by Cobb to each essay on his work. Griffin, a former Cobb student and current colleague at Claremont, reports that this section has been called "the best part of the book." Griffin said he conceived the idea of the volume at the University of Dayton, where he taught between his student days in Claremont in the 60's and his return to teach philosophy of religion in 1973.

The other coeditor is Thomas J.J. Altizer, longtime friend of Cobb and professor at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. (Cobb had previously edited a book on Altizer's theology.)

Altizer in his introduction states that Cobb "has no peers among his fellow theologians, at least in the United States," calling him "non-alienated," "holistic," and "the only theologian who has constructed a systematic and comprehensive polar theology... It is neither theistic, atheistic, nor pantheistic. Nor is it Biblical, historical, philosophical or ethical. For it intends both to transcend and to unify these seemingly incompatible forms of theology, and to do so by way of seeking a human, a cosmic, and a universal theology."

The book frankly reveals how Cobb has changed his mind, leading the editors to call the book his "theology in process." Cobb is probably the world's foremost exponent of "process theology," in which God and everything in the universe are held to be "in process," even, apparently, the thought of John Cobb.

Process theology has arisen from the thinking of Alfred North Whitehead, the British mathematician who taught philosophy at Harvard 1924-36.

Griffin notes that his mentor has shifted from expressing a need for a mere renewal of Christianity to the necessity for reform of the Christian vision and a new life style.

The coeditor also notes that Cobb tends to be on both sides of relativism, sometimes indicating that some objective data are untouched by "our conceptuality or imaginative vision," and sometimes thinking all data is colored by one's perspective.

More fundamental Cobb shifts, according to Griffin, include his change in emphasis from the need for conceptual clarity on such a subject as Christ, to a different stress which underlines the importance of shaping Christian images.

Cobb's earlier view involved trying to locate the essence of Christianity, which he found in a vision of reality and/or a structure of existence. In his later approach he does not think in terms of an essence, but likens the Christian tradition to a "living person."

Just as there can be a creative transformation in an individual, yet still remaining the same person, so, according to the later Cobb, Christianity can take on whole new character while remaining true to its traditions.

Cobb is the son of retired missionaries to Japan who live in Claremont's Pilgrim Place. He and Mrs. Cobb are active members of the Claremont United Methodist Church. He was the official responder at the 1977 annual meeting of the Methodist Pacific and Southwest Conference at Redlands.

In his replies at the close of the book on his theology, Cobb shares some of the humanity of his own spiritual pilgrimage, as for example in this excerpt:

"Since the transcendent Christian God had been the close companion as well as Lord of my youth, my personal experience of his 'death' in university days was deeply painful and the wound may not yet be healed... I began to live into Whitehead's vision, which year by year became more my own. Within that encompassing way of thinking, God gradually became real to me again."

He says the "death-of-God" theologians in the 60's helped him sort out the difference between concepts he actually believed and those he articulated out of respect for the beliefs of others, continuing:

"What then is my bedrock conviction about God in distinction from the many opinions I am prepared to defend? It is that the new does not come from the old, that the future is not the mere outgrowth of the past. But... a gift... a creative transformation that is both judgment and grace... In short, I believe in God."

Besides Griffin, Altizer and Cobb, other essayists in the volume are Mary Daly, Charles Hartshorne, Traugott Kock, Robert Neville, Wolfhart Pannenberg, Charles H. Reynolds, Takao Tanaka and David Tracy.

Lutherans to attend convention in Dallas

Local residents will be among 1,100 voting delegates to the 52nd convention of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod when it meets at the Dallas Convention Center July 15-22.

The Rev. Edwin Krueger, pastor of Peace Lutheran Church, Pomona, and Dave Ramirez of St. Lukes Lutheran Church of Claremont will represent the nine parishes in this area which are member congregations of the Missouri Synod, the nation's second largest Lutheran body with 2.8 million members in 6,000 parishes.

Also attending the convention from this area will be the Rev. Wm. H. Iiten, public relations director of the Southern California District of the church, and pastor of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Diamond Bar, who, together with his wife Jean, will be assisting in the news coverage of the convention.

The convention is due to take action on more than 250 resolutions covering all aspects of the church's work. In addition, elections will be held for many positions, including those of president and first vicepresident of the Synod.

It is expected that President J.A.O. Preus of St. Louis, where church headquarters are located, will be re-elected to his third term in that office.

One of the most important issues facing the 130-year old LCMS at Dallas has to do with its continued fellowship with the American Lutheran Church. Since the Missouri Synod declared altar and pulpit fellowship with that church in 1969, a number of doctrinal disagreements have surfaced which are resulting in the convention proposal that the Synod declare itself in "a state of fellowship in protest" with the ALC, to allow study of the issues before the Missouri Synod would take further action at its 1979 St. Louis convention.

Delegates will also act on a new common hymnal which is being proposed for most North American Lutherans. The recommended procedure is that the convention authorize study of the material it will contain and accept the new book no sooner than the next biennial convention.

A sensitive issue in the church has to do with its relationship to the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, a new body formed by Missouri Synod dissidents at the end of a recent bitter controversy over interpretation of the Bible. Many of the AELC dissidents also have retained their membership in the Missouri Synod. The convention is set to determine how long such dual memberships should be allowed to continue.

It is expected that delegates will pass a measure that would keep the Synod participating in the Lutheran Council in the U.S., and will authorize new mission work in West Africa.

Other resolutions call for increased awareness of world hunger, housing concerns, stepped-up work among blacks, affirmation of the Synod's strong stand against abortion, and many other actions relating to the church's missions and ministry.

The convention also serves as the climax of a year's observance of the Synod's first century of work with blacks. A special pageant at Dallas is planned to mark the anniversary.

Theme for the 1977 LCMS convention is "That We May Grow," the title suggested for all programs of the Synod over the next two years.

Bequest

The largest single bequest to the School of Theology at Claremont has been completed. Final payments make the gifts of Mr. and Mrs. H. Dixon Oberdorfer the most total giving ever received from a single family — $868,548. The couple were members of the Claremont United Methodist Church and resided at Mt. San Antonio Gardens in Pomona before their deaths in 1973 and 1975. They made lifetime gifts to the school totaling $102,510. Oberdorfer founded the New Castle Products Co., New Castle, Indiana, manufacturers of acoustical and modern fold doors.

Home prices increase again

The median sales price of an existing home in California climbed again during the month of April to hit a new high of $58,322, 2.9 per cent increase over the previous month and a 24.6 per cent climb from a year ago.

The figures, released by Jerome Blank, president of the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, were based on data taken from a cross section of 27 boards of Realtors throughout the state, representing approximately 34.5 per cent of member boards.

In making the report, Blank said the upward trend in housing prices "appears to be showing some signs of stabilization," noting that his organization's survey of member boards indicated an under 3 per cent increase for the past two months.

"While it is still too early to predict a statistical trend," Blank explained, "we have seen a definite decrease from the February high of 6.3 per cent, the greatest monthly increase in the two years we have been monitoring the market."

Earlier this month, Blank predicted that skyrocketing home prices will begin to level off as new home construction begins to catch up with current housing demands. And even then, he does not foresee a sudden drop in record high housing prices.

The report also stated that the $40,000-to-$49,999 price range showed the greatest frequency of sales during the month of April (17.3 per cent).

Margaret Mead seeks community restructuring to end segregation

"You don't find many early or primitive societies that treat old people as badly as the civilized societies do," says Margaret Mead in a July 26 Family Circle interview, which showcases the anthropologist's observations on growing old in America.

Dr. Mead feels the need for a restructuring of American society to keep the old and the not-so-old together, saying, "If there is a separation of old people from family life, there is tragedy for both young and old."

Dr. Mead, herself, began preparing for her present old age of 75 when she was 24. "I went to work at the Museum of Natural History...I saw a doddering old man walking around the corridors, and I asked, 'What is he doing here?' I discovered that at the museum they keep you until you die. And so I decided to stay right there."

From her post at the museum, she has surveyed the situation of the elderly in America: "...the poor ones," she comments in the interview, "are stacked away in nursing homes...warehouses for the old." The more affluent move into golden ghettos or go to Florida, but they too are segregated and lonely.

America who are badly afraid of older people because they never see any." In an already youth-oriented society, the missing associations with older people who enjoy living fosters a fear and dread of aging. What Dr. Mead describes as "a sense of continuity and of the possibilities for a full life" may never develop.

Part of the solution, she maintains, is a total physical rebuilding of communities. "Older people need to live within walking distance of shops, friends and family. They need younger people to help with the heavy chores, to shovel the snow...so they can continue to live on their own." Several universities, Dr. Mead says, are building alumnae housing on campus as a way of keeping older people active in community life.

The practice of early retirement must also end, she feels. It is not only wasteful but cruel. Mentioning the harsh adjustment men, in particular, must make, Dr. Mead says, "...the men are admirals without a fleet. They don't know what else to do but die." Retired working women, at least, have the continuity of household responsibilities.

It is a sense of interdependence that Dr. Mead says America must develop; this is the real issue she feels faces young and old alike.

Children being cheated

By Wilson Riles
State Superintendent of Public Instruction

Children and taxpayers in California are being cheated by the way our public schools are financed.

That's what the California Supreme Court said last December in ruling on a case known as "Serrano vs. Priest." And that's why the state legislature has been hard at work since January trying to reform California's school finance system.

The court said many children are being shortchanged because the quality of the schooling they receive is linked too closely to the value of property in the school district in which they live. If they live in a district with high property wealth per pupil, the chances are they receive better schooling than if they live in what is known as a low property wealth district, the court said.

That's because taxpayers in high property wealth districts can raise more money for schools with a much lower tax rate than can taxpayers in low property wealth districts. As an example, a $2 tax rate in a district with $50,000 of property wealth behind each pupil yields $1,000 per pupil, while it takes a $4 tax rate to raise the same amount in a district with only $25,000 of property behind each pupil.

A school that spends $3,000 per pupil is far more likely to be able to attract more — and more qualified — personnel and to provide its students with a wider variety of learning options than a school that spends less than $1,000.

The state supreme court said such differences in per pupil spending due to differences in local district property wealth are illegal. The court gave the state legislature until September 1980 to develop a more equitable means of funding public schools.

The governor and legislators have a unique opportunity to resolve this complex issue once and for all — or at least for many years to come.

Efforts to reform our school finance system, generated by the Serrano decision, are helped dramatically by the availability of sufficient state funds due to an estimated $2.5 billion state budget surplus.

It's time to act. The need is apparent and the necessary funds are available.

What the governor and legislature decide to do will have a major impact on both taxpayers and children for years to come.

Their decision is critical because public schooling is California's biggest business.

It involves more children than there are people in 34 states. California spends an average of $1,595 on each of 4.5 million students from kindergarten through the 12th grade. The cost to California taxpayers is more than $6.4 billion a year.

The state's 1,042 local school districts employ 364,000 people to manage and operate 7,045 schools, making public schooling the single largest employer in the state.

In trying to resolve the Serrano decision, state officials must consider the quality of public schooling in California. Legally, the issue raised by Serrano is one of equity, not one of quality. The quality of public schooling available to California children can be equally good or equally poor and still fulfill the mandate of the state supreme court.

Educationally, however, the issues of equity and quality are linked. Every child in California should have an equal opportunity to receive a quality education.

Even today, California's education system is not spending as much as many people believe. Although California's 21.7 million residents have the 11th highest per capita income in the nation, it ranks only 18th among the states in per capita expenditures on public schooling. And it ranks 17th in actual per-pupil expenditures. We cannot afford to slip further. To do so will place us below the national average on both counts.

The Serrano decision is both a challenge and an opportunity. It's a challenge to equalize educational opportunities and the tax burden on citizens throughout the state. And, at the same time, it's an opportunity to provide quality education for all California children.

The requirements of Serrano can be met without dismantling basic elements of our public school system. Despite widespread misconceptions, the court:

- Did not outlaw local property taxes as a means of financing public schools.
- Did not require that all schools spend the same amount of money for the education of each child.
- Did not order the state to assume 100 per cent of all local school costs.
- Did not abolish local control of public schools.
- Did not rule out the possibility that local property tax revenues might still be part of an acceptable school finance system.

The court also recognized that different kinds of children require different kinds of schooling, some of which cost more than others. It said that full state funding is only one of many options available in meeting the court mandate. And a new state school finance program does not require any lessening of state-delegated authority to local citizens.

What the court did say to Californians is to start treating children and taxpayers fairly.

MEETING THE PEOPLE — Representative Jim Lloyd (D-35) tours the Aerojet Ordnance and Manufacturing Company of Chino, part of his plan to "get out and meet the people" in his district, which includes the West End and Pomona Valley.

Production workers at the plant explained their activities in support of the national defense and had an opportunity to ask Lloyd questions.

Stirling coauthors privacy legislation

Assemblyman Dave Stirling, (R-64) has coauthored legislation aimed at protecting the individual's right to privacy and to curtail the dissemination of inaccurate or misleading information.

"State agencies constantly collect information about private individuals," Stirling said, "and much of this information has an effect on the subject's life as a result of its use by those with access to it."

"It is my belief that the right to privacy guaranteed under the constitutions is being threatened and that technology has greatly magnified the potential harm to the right to privacy," he noted.

"This bill, SB 170, recognizes that government tends to engage in extensive manipulation of personal data and to ask increasingly more complex, probing and sensitive questions. It is necessary to regulate the use of personal and confidential information gathered and kept by state agencies."

Under this bill, state agencies would be allowed to maintain personal or confidential information only if necessary to accomplish a constitutional, statutory or federally mandated purpose. It would authorize access to the information by the individual. Also, the bill would allow the individual the opportunity to correct the records if inaccurate.

Under this bill, agency employees would be subject to discipline, including dismissal, for willfully disclosing prohibited information or for willfully maintaining personal or confidential information in violation of this bill.

"I believe this legislation would provide an effective measure to protect the individual's right to privacy which is rapidly being eroded by government agencies' increasing demands for information," Stirling concluded.

ARB to hold public hearing

In an effort to solve the controversial Alaskan oil transportation problem, the state Air Resources Board will hold a special public hearing July 16 to hear testimony regarding a proposed petroleum terminal in Long Beach.

Representatives from Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio) and British Petroleum Corp., which owns a majority interest in Sohio, are expected to outline plans for the terminal, which will be used to receive the oil and then ship it eastward for refining in the south and midwest.

The general public, including residents of Long Beach, are also expected to be present for the day-long session which will mark the first official public discussion of the controversial terminal project.

Although Sohio filed its application to construct the terminal last October, the application has not yet been completed, and concerns about oil spills and air pollution have been raised by state and federal agencies.

ARB Chairman Tom Quinn said the state is "anxious" to reach a speedy decision on the Sohio application.

"We are hopeful that this special hearing will resolve some of the remaining questions and allow us to move forward with a decision," he explained.

Persons who wish to obtain additional information or who plan to testify should contact Kay Wilson, (916) 322-5594.

Assembly bill protects mobilehome owners

Legislation establishing a special state fund to protect mobilehome consumers has been approved by the state Assembly.

Authored by Assemblyman Bill Lancaster (R-62), the bill, AB 487, will require dealers to pay $5 into the fund for each mobilehome they sell.

The money will be deposited in the new Mobilehome Consumer Indemnity Fund which will be used to pay consumers who receive an award from a court for losses resulting from fraud, misrepresentation, deceit, breach of warranty or contract.

"Present law requires all motor vehicle dealers to file a $5,000 bond for this purpose. However, in the case of mobilehomes, that amount has proved to be inadequate," Lancaster said.

JOGGING — Gary Thams of Montclair, who uses the aerobics program, jogs on Mt. Baldy road above the valley. "I really enjoy the exercise and fresh air," said Thams who has been working on the aerobics program to just a few months. Aerobics, especially the program designed by Kenneth Cooper, is being used by local schools and individuals.

Time to get into shape

Aerobics is the way

Those wonderful, fun - filled, warm days are here again and now is the time to get into shape.

Over the colder months of this past year, many people have shunned or hibernated from exercise. Many have gotten a little flabby or gained a few unnecessary and unwanted pounds.

There are many pro's and con's about exercise, especially jogging, that experts haven't agreed upon. Some say jogging is good for you and others say that it is harmful.

'The New Aerobics'

But the most expounded source of information that is also in an easy to read condensed form is the book "The New Aerobics" by Kenneth N. Cooper, M.D. The book discloses a way to determine how much exercise you need and how to determine its benefits.

Jogging is definitely beneficial for almost all people, but its benefits are greatly appreciated by those people in the mid-adult range — ages 25-45 — and beyond.

Jogging and other forms of exercise such as swimming, cycling and other sports activities are very beneficial for your heart and circulatory system. In fact the term "aerobics" refers to a wide variety of exercises that stimulate heart and lung activity for a long enough period of time to produce beneficial changes in the body.

Marlin Dickey, professor at Chaffey College in Alta Loma, started the aerobics program of exercise in 1964. He became interested in the aerobics conditioning and exercise program in 1963 after taking a group of students on a field trip to the Grand Canyon. The group had great difficulty getting out of the canyon, Dickey said, adding "I didn't feel all that good."

When 1964 rolled around he decided to start a student aerobics program of running. Eventually a sophisticated program was begun.

Dickey received help from faculty members. One of these was Chuck Hicks, Chaffey College track coach.

The program consisted of a mile and one-half of a mile run under allotted 12 minutes.

A personal experience

Dickey was severely injured in an accident about four years ago. "The accident broke everything on the left side of my body, broke all of my ribs, broke my left foot and my pelvis thorough both sockets on both sides," he said, noting that he ended up spending 15 days in the intensive care unit at San Antonio Hospital in Upland.

"The doctor wasn't very optimistic. He said I would probably never walk again or lift my left arm," Dickey said, lifting his left arm as he spoke.

The anesthesiologist who took care of Dickey after the accident said if he hadn't been in good aerobic conditioning, there's a good chance that he wouldn't have survived the accident.

"Running is a very positive thing," Dickey said. "It allows you to get rid of all the hostility that's within you, and the animosity and the anger and the frustration from your job flows out of you ... you begin to find a oneness with yourself."

From San Antonio Hospital Dickey was transferred to Kaiser Hospital for therapy. The therapist told him he could lie in bed and be invalid the rest of his life and nobody would ever question it.

Dickey's recovery

But Dickey was in such good shape and the aerobics program had given him such a good mental attitude, that today he is on the aerobics cycling and running program again.

During the therapy sessions Dickey said he kept his mental attitude and struggled to keep his ability to walk.

The first obstacle was sitting in the wheelchair. "Four big nurses came into my room and I said 'you have a job to do so do it. Just let me yell cause it hurts. There's not going to be an easy way to do this. Let's just do it.'"

After two weeks he could sit in a wheelchair. The therapy got better and better. "I willed myself well," he said. After a month he could lift his left arm off the bed about an inch. But this was progress.

After a few months of therapy he began to use a static exercycle. In 1975 he tried to run again. It wasn't possible because of the pain in his left foot. So instead of running, he took to hiking and cycling. He had almost completely recovered.

February of 1977 was a big year for Dickey. He began to run. First he would cycle for half an hour on a static exercycle. "Then," he said with a smile, "I went out and ran the distance between two telephone poles. I felt so dumb. People must have thought that I was a real light weight." Dickey did this for a week and then ran the distance between two telephone poles. Today he is running four miles a day. And he does it under 27 minutes.

Exercise and good aerobic conditioning saved Dickey's life. It can help others too. The mental and physical benefits will greatly increase self awareness and pride.

Safety

In any form of exercise, safety is a most important factor. Whether it be a six - minute mile or just a nice jog around the block, the most important thing is to achieve it safely.

So the very first step is to get a physical examination and get a doctor's approval for the type of exercise planned.

"The main objective of this examination is to spot heart, lung and blood vessel problems that could make exercise potentially dangerous," said Cooper in his book. This is most important for older people who tend to have problems of this nature.

In order to accomplish the aerobic exercise correctly and to keep track of physical condition, the aerobics user should acquire a few items. These include light clothing, good lightweight shoes made for running, absorbant type socks (preferably cotton), and a stop watch with a sweep second hand for keeping track of exercise time equivalent. Another item which isn't necessary but is quite pleasant is a friend or mate to run with.

Best time to run

The early morning or late afternoon is the best time to run in this area because of the smog, according to biologist Jim DesLauriers of Claremont.

"The smog is caused by more sunlight. The ultraviolet light carries out the chemical reactions of smog and the rate of production is greatest at mid-day," he said adding, "Light makes smog and cars provide the raw materials."

DesLauriers has been with the aerobics program for five years now. He runs or cycles 6-10 miles a day. It fits right into his everyday schedule.

When asked, "What are the psychological effects?" Jim said, "Real good. I can work harder, and I'm absolutely convinced that I don't get sick."

Physical condition has been broken down into five categories: very poor, poor, fair, good and excellent.

It is important exercisers know their own category so they and their doctor can plan an exercise program according to some set of standards.

To find a fitness category, the exerciser must first take a field test. The test consists of discovering how far you can run in 12 minutes. The easiest way to do this is to run on a quarter-mile track, which can be found at high schools.

If running on a street, mileage can be determined by driving a car over the course, keeping a close eye on the car's odometer. Charts No. 1 and 2 will tell you what physical condition you are in.

The field test and categories section are broken up into age groups. The reason for this is that the less a person uses his or her body, the longer it takes to build up the capacity for the blood to absorb oxygen. The less oxygen enriched the blood is, the less likely a person is going to sprint a mile.

Point system

The object of the aerobics program is to get 30 points per week. Points are calibrated in distance covered in a certain amount of time.

Chart No. 3 is a list of point values. The object is to work up to 30 points per week and to stay at or above 30 points per week. Exercisers who stick to this goal soon find their points going above 100.

Cooper established the following exercise guidelines for different age groups:

— Under 30 — Start exercising after a check-up (within the past year) and a doctor's approval.

— Between 30-39 — Have a check-up within three months before starting exercises. The examination should include an electrocardiogram (ECG) taken at rest.

— Between 40-59 — Same as the 30-39 group with one important addition: a doctor should take an ECG to check the heart while the person is exercising. The exerciser's rate during this test should approach the level it would during aerobic workouts.

— Over 59 — The same requirements for the 40-59 age group except that the examination should be performed immediately before embarking on any exercise program.

When running don't run with rigid knees and avoid bounding. The best surface to run on is a smooth, well kept grass field. In case of blisters, treat them immediately after running. Keep feet clean and dry and the toenails closely clipped.

One man put the problems of running this way: "After eight weeks on the conditioning program, I feel younger, stronger and more alive. And my problems — the ones that looked so bad before — well, they haven't gone away. But somehow they look smaller."

The first few weeks aren't going to be easy but don't give up hope. Lungs will get stronger, legs firmer, and the heart rate drops and oxygen absorbance capacity increases.

Stage review

A 'mellerdramer' treat

By Lynne Locke

The Actors Repertory Theatre production of "Curse You, Jack Dalton" is a treat for "mellerdramer" fans who can boo the villain, cheer the hero, sigh for the heroine and applaud the villainess' defeat.

The production, directed by Jack Fisher at the Claremont Playhouse through Aug. 27, also includes a number of olio acts ranging from pathetic songs to magic tricks.

The opening night audience clearly enjoyed both the mellerdramer itself and the olios, all performed by a cast who hammed up every chance they got to the audience's delight.

Howard Wilson portrayed the "manly" but somewhat stupid hero Jack Dalton with real style — always doing the properly heroic thing with just enough clumsiness to entertain the audience.

Pretty Lori Swank was well cast as his beloved, as "poor but honest" maid Bertha Blair, who had fallen on hard times after the death of her parents. Her simplicity and innocence charmed the audience both in the play in a pathetic but humorous olio song.

Villainess Anna Alvarado, played by Carol Hendrix, provided the evil interest in the plot along with villain Egbert Van Horn, portrayed by Ron Carroll.

The two plot to kidnap and defame the helpless heroine in an attempt to win the Dalton fortune for themselves. They are heartily booed and hissed by the audience, which is aware of their evil designs from the beginning.

Merrilee Drake captured the audience's favor in her cameo role as Jack's unattractive sister Eloise, innocently pleased to have finally "caught a beau," who, of course, turns out to be the villain.

The cast is rounded out by Larry Harrison, playing Bertha's faintly ridiculous brother, and Hazel Koodykoontz as Jack's aristocratic mother.

Unsung hero of the play is music director Malcolm Atterbury Jr. who cued the audience with expert musical accompaniment ranging from the lighthearted dainty walk of the heroine to the heavy, melodramatic entrance of the villain.

Costumes by Jim Gardner and set by Margot Andrews provided a perfect background for the play — clearly providing the atmosphere. But lack of clarity about change in time from the first act to the second hindered the audience in understanding some of the necessary action.

Queen of the olios — and perhaps queen of the evening — was Martha Palmer Fuller, who combined a genteel middle-aged appearance with a racy singing style to win audience applause and whistles.

Other winning olios were a spirited rendition of "Cremation of Sam McGee" by Keith Mills, an "amateur" magic act, by Marc Heinrich, and some "down South" songs by David Gassner.

Others performing olio acts include Ted Perry, Howard Wilson, Carol Hendrix, Ron Carroll, Merrilee Drake and Carole C. Carle.

All in all the evening is worthwhile for those who enjoy the simple entertainment of a melodrama. Teenagers and older children also enjoy the audience participation of booing and cheering required by a melodrama.

But, one warning: those who like plays with a fast-moving plot and lots of character development would do better to miss this performance since any melodrama will be a disappointment.

For ticket information or reservations call (714) 621-5005. Shows are scheduled 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 3 p.m. Sundays.

ADULT PLAY — The old timer (Bob Worley of Upland) points out the Steam Bath God to Meredith (Gayle Newton of Mt. Baldy) and Tandy (Richard De Haven of Upland) in the Chaffey College production of "Steam Bath" 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The adult play is set in a steam bath which is the waiting place for souls in transit from this life to the next.

GOLDEN TRUMPET — Harry James and his Big Band will perform Friday and Saturday at the Cloud 9 Ballroom at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park. Other entertainment scheduled includes singer Bobby Goldsboro and the ice show "California — That's Entertainment."

Campground opens at Lake Perris

The first campground was opened at Lake Perris State Recreation Area, southeast of Riverside. Of the 250 campsites, 88 are for tent camping and 162 are for recreation vehicles.

Campsite reservations are available at any Ticketron outlet in California. Reservations may be made through Saturday for the following weekend.

State Parks and Recreation Director Herbert Rhodes said the new campground will help to meet the rapidly growing demand for more recreation facilities at Lake Perris. He noted that new beach facilities completed in time for this year's Memorial Day weekend more than doubled the number of beachgoers that can be accommodated at the lake.

All the new facilities are on the north side of the lake.

The new Moreno Beach, east of the original Perris Beach, will serve 5000 people a day, for a total of 8000 beach users at the lake. The campground is north of Moreno Beach.

The day-use facilities at Lake Perris include family picnic units to accommodate 2000 families and three group areas for a maximum of about 400 people. The group picnic areas can be reserved by contacting Lake Perris State Recreation Area at 17801 Lake Perris Drive, Perris, CA 92370, telephone (714) 657-7321.

Lake Perris has two boat launching ramps and parking spaces for 350 cars with boat trailers, with 125 more to be completed soon.

Rhodes said Lake Perris is expected to offer full recreation services all summer long, at least through the Labor Day weekend.

Broadcast center open

KCET, Channel 28, is now offering twice-weekly tours of its new broadcast center, according to Dorothy Kemps, director of volunteers. Arrangements for the tours may be made by calling Mrs. Kemps at 667-9242 or 667-9215.

A microwave recipe

Beef and curried rice

It's nice to know that festive, out of the ordinary beef dishes adapt as well to microwave cookery as does the more standard fare.

Making waves at any party is this asian beef idea served with curried rice. The cut of beef used is top round, thinly sliced. It's an especially good choice for microwave cookery because it's tender, lean and evenly textured.

This dish features a tantalizing blend of ingredients, seasonings and flavors. There's curry, raisins, garlic, green pepper, thyme ... even bananas and sesame seeds! And the entire cooking process takes only half an hour. With beef, rice, fruits and vegetables all in one dish it's a complete and delicious meal in itself.

The secret to making this or any other recipe with various components is to do the cooking in sequence. The food consultants at the California Beef Council have worked out all their recipes for microwave cooking as efficiently as possible, minimizing steps and cooking containers.

Some general rules apply to cooking beef by microwave just as in conventional cooking. Food in shallow, wide containers cooks more quickly and evenly than in deep dishes. Large compact cuts of beef require more cooking time than smaller cuts.

However, roasts over three pounds will brown nicely in the microwave oven. For small cuts, it is advisable to select recipes in which the beef is coated with a sauce or topping. For maximum tenderness, beef is best cooked just until barely done. Because food continues to cook somewhat after removal from the oven, take care to avoid overcooking the beef.

Many consumers are finding that with practice and experimentation, many of their favorite beef recipes adapt to microwave cooking.

Asian Beef with Curried Rice (Microwave Method)

- 3/4 cup rice
- 3 cups water
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/4 cup minced parsley
- 1 medium onion
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 small green pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
- 1 pound beef top round, thinly sliced
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

- 1/8 teaspoon thyme
- 2 green tipped bananas
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons sesame seeds

Combine rice with 2 cups water, 1 tablespoon butter and 1/2 teaspoon curry powder in 2-quart round ovenproof glass baking dish. Cover and cook in microwave oven with high power, stirring once, 20 minutes. Stir in raisins and parsley. Cover and set aside. Combine chopped onion, minced garlic and green pepper cut into 1/2-inch chunks with 1 cup water and kitchen bouquet in 2-quart rectangular ovenproof baking dish. Cover with brown paper. Cook 5 minutes in microwave oven with high power. Mix beef, remaining 1/2 teaspoon vegetable mixture. Cook, uncovered, 3 minutes. Halve bananas lengthwise. Place remaining 1 tablespoon butter in pie plate. Place in microwave oven 45 seconds or until melted. Stir in lemon juice. Arrange bananas in single layer in lemon butter, turning to coat. Cook uncovered with high power 2 minutes. Top rice with beef and bananas. Sprinkle with sesame seeds. Makes 4 servings.

Appliances need afternoon off

"Give your appliances the afternoon off" is the slogan of one of the Southern California Edison (SCE) Company's spring conservation programs aimed at reducing mid-day demand on the electric system.

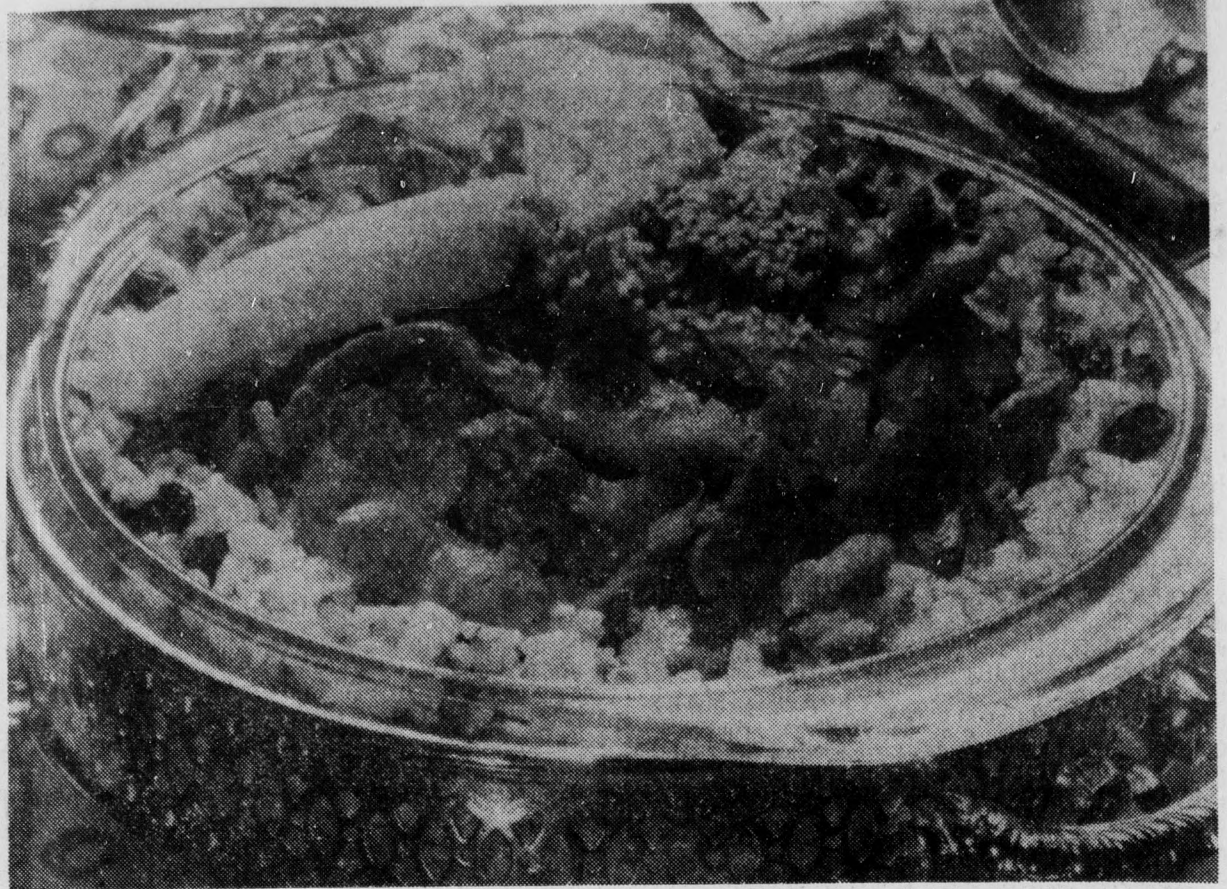

In advertisements, brochures and posters, the Edison Company is urging homemakers to discontinue use of major electric appliances during the weekday afternoons.

"The afternoon period between noon and 6 p.m. is the time when electric customers concentrate their demands upon Edison's power producing facilities," said Edward A. Myers Jr., SCE vice president.

He said the present campaign is part of a long-term effort to convince residential, commercial and industrial customers to spread their use of electricity throughout the whole day.

"If we can reduce the peak demand, particularly on hot summer days, it can help defer construction of expensive power plants in the future," Myers explained.

The utility is asking people to consider using dishwashers, clothes washers and other home electric appliances before noon or during the evening — instead of in the afternoon.

"GO - WEST" SANDWICH — Here's a "Go-West" sandwich which would please everyone on that summer picnic or trip across country this summer. It is full of good things, avocado, spinach, onion, sliced roast beef

See the U.S.A. with a picnic sandwich

See the USA this summer with a picnic sandwich.

Picnics are a favorite American institution, and, with a population that's on the move, regional foods and recipes often travel across the country. So, even if you're sticking close to home this summer, pack the picnic basket with a sampling of sandwiches from around the nation.

And, when planning picnic menus during the warm weather, there's no need to hold the mayo! It's a common mistake to assume that mayonnaise should stay home from picnics. On the contrary, the salt, vinegar and lemon juice in the real mayonnaise actually protects foods against spoilage.

Borrowing from favorite sandwich ingredients in the North, South, East and West, the following sandwich recipes have been created in mayonnaise kitchens. Spoon a cold soup like gazpacho into a thermos and "Go West" with a roast beef and spinach sandwich topped with an avocado and real mayonnaise dressing.

Or, pour a tall, cool glass of iced tea, spike it with mint and serve Southern Fixings Sandwich, featuring ham and turkey on corn bread topped with a flavorful pineapple spread.

"Go West" Sandwich 2 tablespoons boiling water 1 beef bouillon cube 1/2 cup mayonnaise 1/2 cup mashed avocado 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt 1 bag (12 oz) spinach, torn 1 small red onion, sliced 6 hard rolls (each about 6 inches long) 3/4 pounds cooked, sliced roast beef

In large bowl pour water over bouillon cube to dissolve. Stir in real mayonnaise, avocado and garlic salt. Add spinach and onion, tossing to coat. Line rolls with roast beef. Fill each with about 1 cup spinach mixture. Wrap and refrigerate. Transfer to insulated container before carrying to picnic. Makes 6 sandwiches.

New York's Nosh 'n Bagel 3 tablespoons corn oil 1/2 pound chicken livers 1/4 cup chopped onion 1 stalk celery, chopped 1/3 cup mayonnaise 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon pepper 4 bagels, cut in half horizontally or 8 slices rye bread

In medium skillet heat corn oil over medium heat. Add chicken livers and cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly, until browned. Add onion and continue cooking 3 minutes or until onion is browned. Put liver mixture and celery, a third at a time, into blender container. Blend at medium speed 2 minutes, stopping blender often to mix ingredients. Turn into medium bowl. Stir in real mayonnaise, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Spread liver 4 bread slices. Top with remaining bagel halves or bread slices. Wrap and refrigerate. Transfer to insulated container before carrying to picnic. Makes 4 sandwiches.

Southern Fixings Sandwich 1 package (12 oz or 8 1/2 oz) corn muffin mix 1/2 cup mayonnaise 2 tablespoons pineapple or peach preserves 1/4 pound sliced cooked ham 1/4 pound sliced cooked turkey

Grease 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking pan. Prepare corn muffin mix according to package directions and pour into prepared pan. Bake in 350 degrees F oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. In small bowl stir together real mayonnaise and preserves. Cut corn bread into 4 equal squares and then cut each square in half horizontally. Spread both cut sides of each square with 1 tablespoon mayonnaise mixture. Divide ham and turkey evenly among the 4 squares. Top with remaining squares. Wrap and refrigerate.
